★ Houses Play Host Tonight To Students

The second annual Host House Night will be held tonight from 8 to 10.

Houses in each of the eight off-campus areas have been designated as the host house, and students from the areas are invited to visit their host houses.

Refreshments and entertainment will be provided.

Host House Night is an off-campus exchange that is unique with SIU, said Mrs. Anita B. Kuo, supervisor of off-campus housing.

The Housing Office and individual householders cooperate in planning the event. The program is planned to let students enjoy more fully the social, educational and intellectual facilities of the University, said Mrs. Kuo.

She reported that some 60 supervised houses served as host houses last year and about 2500 students participated.

As a result of last year's Host House Night, some of the integration problems were alleviated, said Mrs. Kuo. One of the main problems now facing off-campus residents is high rent, she added.

Plans are also underway for a Host House Night in

Students Swarm Displays On Careers in Chicagoland

More than 3,000 persons took part in the 4th annual Chicagoland Career Day Tuesday in the Ballroom of the University Center.

The exact tally was not available late in the day. However, Robert B. Vokac, coordinator of the event, said, "There is every indication that the attendance is significantly greater this year than that of last year." Last year's crowd was estimated at 3,000.

Sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry, the Cook County SIU alumni chapter, Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business fraternity, and the SIU student government, the display featured 28 firms from the Chicago area.

Arthur E. Wible, representative for the Chicago Tribune display, said he was pleased with the day's turnout and with the Career Day program in general.

"We have been here for all four years and for the last three have hired one person directly as a result of the Career Day. I feel that if we get this one person each year, the day has been well spent."

Humphrey Speaks at Arena Today

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, Democratic candidate for vice president, is scheduled to speak at 2:15 p.m. today at the SIU Arena.

Humphrey will arrive at Williamson County Airport at 1:30 p.m. from Paducah, Ky. He will be met by state and local officials.

According to an announcement Tuesday by Robert McVicar, vice president of academic affairs, all instructors of 2 and 3 p.m. classes are requested to dismiss students to allow them to hear Humphrey's address.

If Humphrey's arrival is delayed—and this will be announced in advance—instructors will adjust class atten-

Students Can Cast Ballots In Designated Precincts

Campus-wide elections are being held on the Carbondale and Vocational-Technical Institute campuses of the university today.

Polls will be open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Students will find they can only vote in one of five precincts.

Parking Unit Has Motorcycle Forms

The Parking Section is now handing out applications for registration of motorized cycles, although registration itself has been delayed.

Edward F. McDevitt, supervisor of the section, said students owning motorized cycles should pick up registration forms at his office in order to have them ready at the inspection time. He said drivers should also make sure their vehicles are in good operating order before they go through the inspection line.

Inspection and registration will begin as soon as the regulations for operating motorized cycles are printed, and that should be very soon, McDevitt said.

"This new precinct method is being tried in order to eliminate fraud," said Howard F. Benson, Elections Commissioner.

In most elections last year protests developed after irregularities were reported by many of the candidates.

"I have developed three safeguards to assure an honest election. One is the computer testing method in which all candidates were checked for eligibility before their names were placed on the ballots. The second is that the ballot must first be validated by the poll-watcher. The final safeguard is that the tabulation of the ballots are supervised by me," said Benson.

Master registration lists have been supplied to all the polls and as a student votes his name is crossed off the list.

The list shows the college the voter is in. Those voting for the out-in-town and married family housing senators must present their activity card.

On all other ballots the only thing required is an ID

Dixie Lawmaker Describes 'Breaking of a Moderate'

Congressman Frank E. Smith, New York: Pantheon Books, 1964, 332 pp.

This is the "story of a politician's failure to bridge the gap between Mississippi and reality." A former journalist and presently a director of the TVA, Frank Smith spent 12 years as a congressman from Mississippi. Elected to Congress in 1950, he tried—and failed—to build a political career "by working for economic progress" rather than by performing the traditional racist rituals. His autobiography details both the making and the breaking of a southern moderate.

While the volume turns to other subjects, its principle interest and significance lies in the author's discussion of Mississippi politics. "The book is largely about race," writes Smith, "because race has been the overriding element in Mississippi politics for more than a century." The "closed society" of Mississippi comes alive as the author describes the intimate interrelationships between racist politics, economic conservatism, and the state's Jim Crow society.

The politics of race is the politics of white supremacy. The South's sacred "states' rights" doctrine is but another name for "white rule." Labeling this historic rallying cry of civil rights opponents as "entirely negative" doctrine, Smith argues persuasively that it has been "clothed in too much respectability" because states' rights really means that "the right of a state to discriminate is more important than the individual citizen's right to protection in the due process of the law."

Reviewed by

Jerome M. Mileur

Labor Institute

If states' rights provides the ideological justification for white rule, the cozy congressional coalition between southern Democrats and northern Republicans puts the muscle into racist politics. Smith identifies this coalition as a wedding between segregationists and economic conservatives. "In the South, opposition to 'strong central government' means opposition to integration. In conservative circles outside the South, the same phrase means opposition to federal spending." The politics of race, the author contends, has become "the strongest bulwark of economic conservatism in Congress today."

Smith concludes that the South's obsession with race has cost the region much of its national political influence. Furthermore, the racist alliance with economic conservatism has prevented the launching of programs to revitalize the South's economy, which the author feels is essential to any real resolution of the race dilemma. Finally, he observes both the "enormous dissipation of talent perverted into fomenting hate and justifying injustice" and the ironical fact that the whites are "eating away their own freedom in the attempt to deny freedom to others."

Twelve years of frustration in Washington were climaxed for Frank Smith in 1962 when the racial extremists in the Mississippi state legislature skillfully re-districted him out of his congressional seat. His "liberalism" on the race issue (he had voted against every civil rights bill introduced while he was in Congress but also had refused to shout "Nigra" from the campaign stump) and his support of the Kennedy Administration had become too offensive to state leaders. In the estimation of Ole Miss historian James Silver, Smith, during his tenure, was "Mississippi's most effective national representative since World War II."

Smith calls his book an "apology" for his hypocrisy in opposing civil rights legislation, but it is equally an impressive personal study of real politics. A straightforward volume, refreshingly free of moralisms and self-applause, the book would be recommended reading for anyone interested in American politics at any time. It is especially recommended reading in an election year crowded with oratory on states' rights and civil rights.

New Generation of East Germans Shows National Self-Confidence

Journey Through the Land of Eloquent Silence, by Joseph Wechsberg. Boston: Little, Brown and Co., 1964, 145 pp., $3.95.

It is difficult, if not impossible, for people in the West to understand the political conditions in countries behind the Iron Curtain, not to speak of the human problems. Joseph Wechsberg, in Journey through the Land of Eloquent Silence, has captured much of the atmosphere of life in East Germany.

A significant change has taken place in the German Democratic Republic. For years people, and especially the older generation, were confident that their political and economic environment would soon be absorbed in a united Germany. They have looked toward the West, faithfully waiting for encouragement.

Today these people have lost faith in the willingness of the West to pursue this course and resorted to a position of political indifference, even of seeking ways of reconciling their political beliefs with the Communist system.

The younger generation seems to be better off. The state has taken over the responsibility of educating children from pre-nursery school through university. Students at institutes of higher education receive monthly allowances and have the opportunity to live very inexpensively in dormitories ($2.50 per month for room, board and laundry).

The new breed of East Germans displays a high degree of national self-confidence and looks down upon the West German as an example of Western decadence. The enthusiasm for the state seems to be sincere. The German Democratic Republic, many East Germans argue, is a product of their own effort, while West Germany experienced its economic boom with the help of "capitalist" America.

Despite occasional breakdowns in the execution of the plan, there can be no doubt East Germany is improving

Galbraith Recalls Boyhood Among Canadian Scotch

The Scotch, by John Kenneth Galbraith. Boston: Houghton Mifflin Co., 1964, 145 pp., $3.95.

The title is not an error. While it is true that in Scotland no true Caledonian would ever refer to himself as "Scotch", the author carefully explains that the sturdy clansmen who settled in Ontario along the shore of Lake Erie preferred the word usually associated with a native beverage. Mr. Galbraith writes of their descendants, and of his own boyhood, with nostalgic affection.

The result is a baker's dozen charming, and sometimes earthy, vignettes of rural life in Canada around the turn of the century. While the author writes specifically of "the Scotch" with their propensity for thrift and hard liquor, their story might easily be the saga of the Irish, German, Danish or Norwegian ethnic groups who help make rural America.

Nostalgia, the author concedes, is a tricky reference and he explains that at times "deepened a shadow or sharpened a line". But he writes with sincere affection and dry humor of his own boyhood and of the adults who made it a fascinating place in which to grow up.

In these sketches you will meet the McIntyre, whose hostelry was the scene of some of the most spectacular violence ever inspired by distilled spirits; Hannah, the village storekeeper's wife, who doted on misfortune and disaster, and Old Tommy, principal of the local high school, whose ideas on education were unorthodox, even for that time.

This book is an intriguing change of pace for the author

Everyone who has heard the stories told by a grandparent, of rural life before mechanization and the automobile ended its isolation, will enjoy these sketches.

Tin Pan Alley Goes West

Burgeoning Pops Industry Singing a New Tune

Anything Goes: The World of Popular Music, by David Dachs. Indianapolis, New York: Bobbs-Merrill Co., 1964, 323 pp., $5.

In case you haven't taken a good look since the days of Red Seal records, there has been a vast change in the world of music. Most easily marked is the change in popular music. Like mercury, it is hard to grasp, but there are several main trends.

Where Tin Pan Alley was the music capital of the world in the old sheet-music days and the song plugger was important, there are now three capitals and more than one way to assure a particular song's success. There is still New

E. A. TALLEY

York, but added to it are Hollywood and Nashville, Tenn.

The "pop" single (45) has changed its market and appeals chiefly to girls 13 to 15, who have more money to spend than did their older sisters. The record-makers see to it that they get their share but admit they are not always sure whether or not they have a hit. Pop singers are younger, too, and many come and go faster than a TV commercial.

One reason for the concentration of the pop single on this narrow but lucrative market is the rise of the LP record. What once needed a whole album for recording is now compressed into a single record. It is less bulky, requires less changing and is often cheaper overall, although still more expensive than an old single record. Its music is more enduring than that on pop records, and its attractive packaging possibilities have not been overlooked by the music publishers.

The proliferation of recording companies has reached the point where it is almost impossible to know them all. Many of the old guard publishers have practically retired from the wild competition, content to rake in the profits from assured hits of a few years ago that are sure to be added to any complete collection.

"Anything Goes" covers the wide world of musical activity in the record revolution: Country and Western music, Broadway's lesser role in musical impact, Hollywood's role, the economics of music—you name it, Dachs discusses it.

Dachs is former publicity director of Caedmon Records and writes on entertainment for The Saturday Review and Downbeat. He also edits Straw Hat, a guide to summer theaters and music tents. He is an adept writer and covers so completely all phases of music that the layman occasionally finds a compendium of information that only the initiate really needs.

Despite its thorough coverage, Dachs has written a book so up-to-the-minute that it is already beginning to be a bit dated. It went to press just before the Beatles invaded the country.

U.S. Officials Keeping Eye Out For New Upheavals in Kremlin

WASHINGTON -- U.S. officials are watching for possible further upheaval in the Soviet Union's leadership as they consider what steps the United States should take in the coming weeks to deal with changing international conditions.

President Johnson, who conferred with congressional leaders for 2 1/2 hours Monday, has called a meeting of his special advisory committee on foreign policy for Wednesday. This group of prominent private citizens will be given detailed reports on world developments and asked to consider various possible actions.

Johnson told newsmen that he had met with the congressional leaders, Democrats and Republicans, but gave no details of the information presented to them. He said the reports he and several Cabinet members gave constituted "a highly classified briefing."

It is understood that administration officials told the legislative leaders they are not sure what issues, domestic or international, led to the overthrow of Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

The briefing is also understood to have brought out that while Leonid I. Brezhnev, 57, seems to be the top man in the Soviet ruling group, the actual post-Khrushchev power structure is not yet clear and the possibility of further changes, possibly involving a power struggle in the Kremlin, must be borne in mind.

Khrushchev's formal authority was divided between Brezhnev, as first secretary of the Communist party, and Alexei N. Kosygin, 60, as premier.

U.S. experts said real power in the Soviet Union is vested in the Communist party's Presidium, which is a kind of board of directors with Brezhnev's position that of chairman of the board.

Administration officials say the situation faced by Brezhnev, Kosygin and other members of the Communist ruling group is basically different in one respect from that which faced the men who took over after Stalin's death in 1953.

The men now in power have had a great deal of experience in working together. They shared authority with Khrushchev, who spent almost three years' time away from Moscow.

It is considered possible, therefore, that the process of shaking down into an orderly government under the new leadership will be less difficult for the current rulers than for Stalin's successors.

Possible Hike In Tensions Seen by Ike

GETTYSBURG, Pa. -- Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower says he believes "there is more likelihood that we will feel heavier pressures" as a result of the expulsion of Nikita Khrushchev as head of the Soviet government.

"We should be more watchful rather than more complacent about what has happened," he added.

Eisenhower said he has not reached any "real conclusions" about the dramatic developments in Moscow. He also stressed that he was not speaking on the basis of any intelligence briefings. "We are just speculating here among ourselves," he said.

The former chief executive discussed the events in the Soviet Union, and the explosion of a nuclear device in Red China, in an interview with The Associated Press.

He said that, with the changes in the Kremlin, "the Russians can go either way. They can get closer to us or closer to China."

Herbert C. Hoover Dead, Busy Almost to the End

NEW YORK—Herbert Clark Hoover, 31st president of the United States, died Tuesday at the age of 90.

His death followed a recurrence of massive gastro intestinal hemorrhage.

The staunch old statesman, whose life spanned a varied career of engineering, high office and humanitarian service, had kept busy almost to the last.

Hoover's two sons were at his bedside when the end came. "Work" was his rule. He called it "the best antidote to talk of ills and pills."

Death came quietly at his apartment at the Waldorf Towers which he described as his "comfortable monastery."

Hoover will lie in state in St. Bartholomew's Church, Park Avenue and 51st Street, for two days. After memorial services, he will be taken by train to Washington.

There, he will lie in state under the rotunda of the national capitol.

Following service there, his body will be flown to West Branch, Iowa, where the final services will be held as he is laid to rest in the national park at the site of the small cottage where he was born in 1874.

Repeatedly, and sometimes almost miraculously in his latter years, he had fought off serious ailments.

But time, and its wear, finally claimed him. No other former president except John Adams, the nation's second chief executive who died at 90, had reached such an advanced age. Adams lived 90 years and eight months. Hoover, 90 years and two months.

Hoover, who passed that mark Aug. 10, 1964, said in a birthday message that the

30-Day Mourning Period Announced

WASHINGTON -- President Johnson proclaimed Tuesday a 30-day period of mourning for former President Herbert Hoover.

He directed that the American flag be flown at half staff at the White House, on all buildings, grounds, and naval vessels of the nation and at embassies and other facilities abroad.

The proclamation was addressed to the people of the United States.

"It becomes my sad duty," the President said, "to announce officially the death of Herbert Hoover, the 31st president of the United States on the twentieth day of October, nineteen hundred and sixty four at 11 o'clock in the morning."

key to America's abundance is its freedom.

"Freedom is the open window through which pours the sunlight of the human spirit and of human dignity."

As president when the "great Depression" hit the nation in 1929, Hoover endured much abuse, but he lived to regain wide affection and esteem as a wise, humane elder statesman.

He was sought out for counsel by Democratic officeholders, as well as Republicans. Countless friends and admirers came to love him as a man of immense sympathies and gentle wit.

Even his grave illnesses of recent times did not stop him from leisurely conversations with callers, and from keeping two secretaries at work with his writing.

Until lately, it had taken eight of them to keep up with his output. But waning health slowed him down.

He underwent surgery for an abdominal cancer in August, 1962, made an astonishing comeback from anemia brought on by intestinal bleeding in June, 1963, and recovered from a kidney hemorrhage complicated by a respiratory infection in February, 1964.

Support Growing to Postpone Opening of General Assembly

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.-- Support is growing for a move to postpone the U.N. General Assembly opening to give the United States and the new Soviet regime time to work out a compromise on the issue of paying peacekeeping dues.

Diplomats predicted the opening would be delayed two weeks, until Nov. 24.

The 19-nation, Latin-American bloc gave virtually unanimous approval to the idea at a meeting Monday after the United States announced it was willing to consider a postponement.

Informants said a number of Asian and African delegates also have signified approval. The Communists apparently are willing to go along.

The Soviets indicated they might quit the United Nations if they lost their assembly vote. They have refused to pay for peacekeeping forces, contending the assessments were illegal because the General Assembly made them instead of the Security Council.

Hart, Bringham Are Selected SIU's Players of the Week

Two new faces adorn the Daily Egyptian's Player of the Week choices based on Southern's 28-19 win over Drake in Des Moines, Iowa, last Saturday.

Quarterback Jim Hart, of Morton Grove, gets the nod as the Back of the Week and tackle Isaac Bringham is honored as the Lineman of the Week because of his fine offensive and defensive work.

Hart, who as a sophomore led the Salukis in the air last year, was having his difficulties this season but finally broke out of it against the Bulldogs.

The 6-2, 190-pounder threw 21 times against Drake, completing 11 passes for three touchdowns and 163 yards. Hart's touchdown total against Drake equaled his season's output in the four previous games.

Hart is throwing at a 41.6 clip, off from last year's 47.4 mark. However, Hart is ahead of his total yardage of last year -- 1,041 -- with 603 yards with the season half over. He has a total of 47 completions in 113 attempts (72 completions in 152 attempts last year).

Bringham, who goes 6-3, 221-pounds, is a freshman from Chipley, Fla. He went both ways for the Salukis against Drake and harassed Drake quarterbacks all day on defense.

Bringham, who coach Don Shroyer once called the "apple of my eye," was credited for knocking the ball out of C.T. Traylor's hands on the Drake one-yard line which led to a 97-yard scamper by Norm Johnson for the decisive touchdown in the game.

Bringham played service ball at Fort Campbell before coming to Southern.

Basketball Clinic To Hear Leaders In Prep Coaching

Three former SIU athletes, now recognized as leaders in the state's prep coaching ranks, will be guest speakers at a one-day basketball clinic to be held Nov. 14 in the SIU Arena.

The trio, Lee Cabutti of Champaign, Mount Vernon's Gene Haile and Dick Ruggles of Nashville (formerly coach of Cobden's state runner-ups), will be in charge of single sessions as will Don Stanton, former Pinckneyville basketball coach, who is now coaching at Mount Vernon, Ind.

After the day long program, more than 100 coaches who are expected to attend the sessions will be guests of SIU's Athletic Department when Southern's football team plays the University of Toledo.

Salukis Unveil Double Wing-T; Phillips Paces Ground Attack

By Richard La Sosa

A new Saluki offensive formation made its debut in Saturday's SIU victory over Drake University.

The new formation, a double wing-T, was instituted by head coach Don Shroyer in a surprise move to add variety to Southern's pro-style offensive attack. The move paid off with a much-needed 28-19 victory over Drake, a team which easily had contained SIU's offensive in two previous games.

According to one Drake observer, Southern's use of the double wing-T—featuring two flankerbacks (Rich Weber and Rudy Phillips) and only one runningback (fullback Irv Rhodes)—caught the Bulldogs' defense completely by surprise. The new offense, which spices the Salukis passing attack with some flashy running, kept the baffled Drake defense off balance throughout the game, particularly in the second quarter when the Salukis tallied twice on pass plays.

For the second consecutive week, Rudy Phillips showed that he had the ability to handle first string flankerback duties for the Salukis. Against Drake, the 5-9, 173-pound speedster was Southern's leading groundgainer with 78 yards in 17 carries and was second in pass receptions with three for 33 yards and one touchdown. In addition, the swift Decatur sophomore is leading Saluki scoring after five games with 21 points (two touchdowns, a field goal and six extra points).

Former SIU quarterback Vern Pollack is having a successful season in his first year as coach at Carbondale Community High School.

Pollack's Terrier squad, 3-0 in league play, is tied with Pinckneyville for first place in the Southwest Egyptian Conference. Carbondale and Pinckneyville, both showing 3-0 records, will meet in McAndrew Stadium Friday.

SIU gymnasts, Rusty Mitchell and Dale McClements, have placed among the top 40 in the first round of Olympic gymnastics competition in Tokyo.

Mitchell, Southern's top gymnast and leading athlete for the past two years, finished 32nd in the opening competition, dominated by Japanese and Russian athletes.

Mitchell tallied 111.2 points in early competition.

Miss McClements, an SIU junior and member of the Southern Illinois Women's Gymnastics Club of Carbondale, tied for 40th with a total of 36.799 points, compared with 38 points posted by the women's leader.

Japan's combined team score of 289.00 set the pace for the first round. The Russian team was second with 287.55 points and the United States seventh with 277.60 points for six men's compulsory events.

There was no word on the progress of Gail Daly, another Carbondale woman gymnast competing in the Olympics.
